PROGRESSIVE MOVEMENT.

Determined Upon by Trinity Reformed Church.

Trinity Reformed Church by a practically unanimous vote resolved to terminate the condition in the old graveyard surrounding the church shown in picture above and become progressive in all surroundings of the church. They have decided that the old unsightly graveyard must go with all impressions it gives to those viewing it. They have determined that the grounds must present a well kept lawn, pleasant to look at and of inviting appearance.

These decisions were made at a congregational meeting called for the purpose where the whole matter was considered and determined. The first resolution was to the effect that Trinity Reformed and St. James Lutheran Churches, the owners of the graveyard, would go into court to have the proper proceedings taken by which the entire title to the land will be placed in Trinity Reformed Church. St. James had already consented to go into such proceedings, asking no return of any kind. When the legal proceedings have been put through Trinity will go forward with the proposed improvements.

The first thing will be a careful survey of the graveyard and all graves located on a plot and blue prints made of the same, so that the exact location of all graves can be kept.

The head stones will then be removed and preserved until the church is remodeled and plans will be made that they can be preserved in some part of the building as tablets.

The entire ground will be plowed and leveled and seeded with grass and a beautiful lawn will be developed and so kept.

A fence will be erected between the church yard and the High Street school buildings. Mr. Milton Plank, of Harrisburg, has already offered in the name of his mother to build that part of the fence which will belong to the church to erect. The older graveyard opposite the church on the south side of High street will be fenced in and the whole environment will be given a progressive and well cared for appearance, such as it has long called for.

It was further resolved that in the Golden Book of Memory, which is being created by Miss Annie O'Neal's Sunday School class, a page will be devoted to every person buried in the grave yard, with description of stone and inscriptions at a cost of $1.00 a page, the money to go to the memorial pipe organ fund.

Assessors Meet Commissioners.

The assessors of the county met with the county commissioners last week and the matter of equalizing the assessment was considered. Geo. W. Baker, clerk to the commissioners, said to the assessors that "The commissioners of Adams county feel the need of a more equal assessment in this county this fall and ask the co-operation of all assessors."

Statistics were quoted of the assessment of properties showing that there were properties assessed as low as one-fourth the figure they brought at public sale since July 1st of this year. The average assessment was stated to be 40 per cent of the real value of the properties.

County Commissioner Wm. M. Linn in his remarks said he did not think it fair for a poor man on a side street to be assessed high and a well-to-do man on a main street to be assessed low "just because the latter kicked all the time to the assessor."

F. V. Topper, assessor of McSherrytown declared that in his district there were numerous properties which the owners were trying to sell below assessed value. After the situation was discussed, the consensus of opinion was that properties should be assessed at 60 per cent of the estimated value of properties. The commissioners indicated that they were after a cut downward in the tax millage which would result from an increased assessment.

Doughboys to Go to Mt. Alto.

The aromatic scent of crushed wintergreen and the pungent breath of balsam and pine will greet the 220 American doughboys or gobs who are slated for a "chance to live" on the top of South Mountain, five miles up-hill from Mont Alto, Pa.

The recently created Veterans' Bureau has taken over the large hospital building and staff house located along the driveway about one mile from the main camp of the Mont Alto sanatorium. This hospital will be under the direction of the State Department of Health and the Commissioner of Health says "the unit will be in full operation by November 5th."

The hospital building had been thoroughly renovated, repainted inside and out, preparatory to using it as a children's home, when the U. S. Public Health Service and the American Legion of Pennsylvania asked the Department of Health to assist in the care of disabled soldiers. Other arrangements were promptly made for the children so that the veterans could be taken, for built as it is, on the sunny top of South Mountain, this hospital is an ideal place in which to get well.

The boys will enjoy the recreation hall and grounds near the hospital, and will use the model craftshop of the institution where minds, as well as bodies, are healed. There is ample room for small truck patches or flower gardens if a man likes to see things grow, and on all sides are woodlands where birds, mosses, trees and flowers lure the fellow whose mind leans that way. About a hundred yards from the hospital is a dense pine copse and the "deer field" where at sunset the lord of the forest comes out to seek the farmers' corn and cabbage.

The Commissioner of Health says "For many of the boys whose lungs were seared by poison gas or invaded by disease, this opening of Mont Alto hospital for their care and treatment means life itself."

OLD INDIAN RACE

"Red Paint Problem" is Interesting Archeologists.

Explorations in the State of Maine Have So Far Been Inconclusive, But Will Go On.

Since the recent donation to the state of Maine of a number of boxes of relics, 2,500 pieces, there has been a renewed interest in the explorations going on in Maine in connection with the so-called Red Paint Indians.

Several of the earlier explorations were around the town of Orland in Hancock county. Ernest O. Sugden, the town clerk, has long been interested in Indian exploration work, and has himself developed into quite an authority on the subject.

Mr. Sugden's curiosity in Indian explorations was first aroused in 1892, when C. C. Willoughby of the Peabody museum, Harvard university, explored the mound at Lake Ala-moosook in Orland. Mr. Sugden, a watch repairer by occupation, became a much interested onlooker. Prof. Warren K. Moorehead of the department of archaeology of Phillips-Andover academy also began explorations in Orland.

So interested did Mr. Sugden become in Indian exploration work that during the past eight years he has assisted in carrying on explorations in nine different states.

Prof. Moorehead says there is in Maine what the scientists call the "Red Paint Problem," so-called because of the quantities of red ochre found in the graves in the cemeteries of these people.

"The problem relates to a people of very great antiquity, which were quite different from Algonquin or other tribes known in early Maine history. The graves are so old that no bones remain. The people seem related to the earliest Esquimaux. Only by the most careful hand-drawn work and minute observation during exploration of cemeteries or sites occupied by these people can we learn concerning their culture and antiquity."

"In these graves are found peculiar gouges, hatchet blades, flint spears, plummetts, long pendants, fire-stones and iron pyrites, and occasionally chipped arrowheads, but the latter are not frequently found."

A. H. Bridges of Waterville, who has long been interested in archaeology, called the attention of Gov. Milliken not long ago to evidences of the former existence of the Red Paint Indians in certain burial grounds in Waterville and Winslow.

"So far as known, the Red Paint men are the oldest culture of humans in North America," says Mr. Bridges. "They antedated pottery, as none has ever been found in their graves. They were spearmen, not bowmen, as only spearheads have been found in burials. They had no peace-pipes, so knew nothing of tobacco as the Indians did."

"Stones for striking fire are common in graves, sheets of mica either for looking glasses or ornament are often found, gouges and spears and chisels were most common instruments of stone, well made and some ornamented."

"They had a printed language of peculiar character as traces on a chisel have been found. More of the language characters will no doubt be discovered as new cemeteries are excavated. No stone axes have been found."

"The most distinct and peculiar trait of these people is the use of red ochre from Mt. Katahdin region in their cemeteries, the stone implements being placed near each body in the ochre. Traces of these people are found along the Penobscot valley, Androscoggin river, and last summer John T. Kelliher of Waterville located a cemetery on the Sebasticook river in Winslow."

"After considering the method of burial and the character of implements found in Red Paint graves," says Mr. Kelliher, "we can easily arrive at the conclusion that they were of a different stock from the historic Indians found here by the first Europeans, since it is well known that the custom of laying the dead in a shallow grave and covering the body with a layer of ochre, or of red paint, was not practiced by the Canibas or Penobscot tribe of the Kennebec river regions, nor of any other tribes of Indians in North America." There have been discovered in Maine 18 of the so-called Red Paint cemeteries and there have been 400 graves examined.

Is Space Endless?

Einstein's theory that space may not be of infinite extent seems to have obtained indorsement by many eminent physicists.

Nevertheless it would not appear that, if this idea be accepted, the cosmos is to be regarded as alarmingly shrunk. For Einstein's own opinion is that a ray of light traveling 186,000 miles a second would require a billion years to make a complete circuit of its outer limits.

It's a Poor Rule, Etc.

"Johnny," said his mother, "you should not eat so much between meals. It will take away your appetite at meal times."

"Don't see why it should," replied Johnny. "My eating at meal times never takes away my appetite for eating 'tween meals."—Boston Transcript.

A good friend stands by you when in need. Gettysburg people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. Mrs. H. H. Ridinger of 247 W. Middle street, endorsed Doan's five years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?

"Besides giving fine benefits to one of my family, Doan's Kidney Pills have also been of great satisfaction to me," says Mrs. Ridinger. "I had a severe backache and weak kidneys and I don't believe any other medicine would give the fine results that Doan's Kidney Pills will for that trouble. At any rate Doan's Kidney Pills are the only kidney medicine that is used in our home and it never fails." (Statement given February 15, 1916).

On April 11, 1921, Mrs. Ridinger said: "I must say that Doan's Kidney Pills did the best kind of work for me in driving kidney complaint away and although it is no longer necessary for me to use Doan's, I believe in them as firmly as ever and I am glad to confirm my statement of 1916. Doan's are certainly a very fine medicine."

WHIPPING POST-FOR WIFE BEATERS

Being a sheriff in Maryland involves the task of using the whipping post whenever wife beaters get active. The photo shows Sheriff McNulty, of Baltimore, administering the "cat-o-nine" tails to Cornelius Smith who has beaten his wife with a rolling pin. This is the first time in nine years a whipping post has been used.
